How did you scrape the page? *

To achieve this process I studied documentation regarding your request, with the programs for Scrape as HTTrack, WebCopy, and among all that, I found a Python library that is BeautifulSoup and import another called request, making a request request.get to the url of the platform, which brings me the structure of the Html. Using the code provided by the page for the full functionality of all the JavaScript and Css using GitHub to upload my repository and Netlify to host my web server.

How did you handle the Google Translate portion *

Creating a function with JavaScript Google Translate portion that passes some configuration options as an object. Finally, the layout option specifies the layout of the widget (in this case, `InlineLayout.HORIZONTAL`). And adding a widget that is rendered inside an HTML element with the ID "google_translate_element". That was placed under the title of the page.
